Projecting Christ to All Generations

HOLY WEEK

Palm Sunday, April 9, 9:00 am
Maundy Thursday, April 13, 6:30 pm
Good Friday, April 14, 6:30 pm
Easter, April 16, 7:00 & 9:00 am

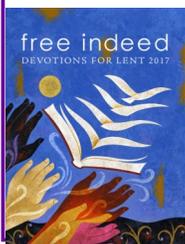

Last month I had the opportunity to attend Wartburg Seminary's Rural Ministry Conference. This year the topic was "Crisis and Conflict in Rural America" which was led by several thought provoking speakers. One interesting point we discussed was how one form of conflict that is more attuned to small towns comes out of the desire to be liked. A person's desire to be liked by others results in doing what they can to avoid anything negative. They will try their best to always be nice, because to be anything else would invite criticism. So, out of the desire to be liked (accepted), they live out of fear of being rejected. This results in people keep their true thoughts to themselves. In doing so, people live with their pain, resentment, and anger. Hidden away, tucked deep inside their hearts, their pain grows like a cancer slowly eating away causing emotional and mental stress, anguish, and depression. All because they do not feel safe to tell their neighbor how their neighbor's actions are truly making them feel. All because they fear the path towards reconciliation, a path that requires bearing one's soul with the light of honesty. So they smile, nod, "that's fine," and keep their mouth shut.

This takeaway is timely as we approach Easter here in a couple weeks – a season of reconciliation. You've heard me teach this Lenten season how we cannot lie to God, God already knows what is on our hearts even before we speak our thoughts. So we approach the cross imperfect, broken, and in need of our Lord's redeeming love. Christ accepts you for who you are. YOU ARE LOVED!

As Christians we are called to emulate Christ's love towards others. That means listening with an open heart to honest feelings and seeking to understand why our neighbor is hurting. And most importantly we are called to respond in the way of Christ. By seeking reconciliation through listening and affirming that you care about the other person. Start with caring for the person, then move on to the issues.

And most importantly, a Christian should never be afraid to talk to another Christian about their pain or shortcomings. Why? Because a Christian has already recognized that they too are sinners. They too have cause problems for others. They too are loved by Christ despite all of that. And most importantly they too have been called show Christ's love to others by not speaking poorly about their neighbor but always viewing their neighbor in the best possible light. (If you want more on this topic read Commandment 8 and Martin Luther's meaning found in the Small Catechism.)

Women and the Reformation

ABOUT THE LUTHERANS

October 2017 marks the 500th anniversary of the Reformation. As we prepare for this celebration, we want to invite you into a time of learning. Martin Luther and many of his reforming companions were teachers after all. Every month we will publish a new article on one of the many diverse aspects of the Lutheran church. We hope you enjoy and learn a little bit more by reading these articles.

"I am prepared to lose everything, even life or limb. May God stand by me." So wrote Argula von Grumbach (1492–1563/68?) from Bavaria, who found Martin Luther's message of Christian freedom and equality empowering. This noble woman challenged an entire Catholic university in Ingolstadt in defense of Lutheran faith and a student persecuted for "Lutheran heresy." This best-selling lay author with her letter-treatises eventually disappeared under pressure from male authorities. Luther considered her a valiant hero of faith.

The Protestant principles "scripture alone," "grace alone," and "priesthood of all believers" inspired women just like men to reengage Christian faith and find renewed spiritual meaning in their daily vocations. With the newly written catechisms and hymns, women were equipped to teach the revived faith to their households, where they exercised significant leadership in matters of religious practice. Women lost the monastic option as convents were closed in Protestant areas, but they benefited significantly from the education provided even for peasant girls.

Whereas the Reformation theology proclaimed equality in Christian love and freedom from human-made bonds, women were forbidden to preach or teach in public. Motherhood was presented to women as the holiest of callings, on a par with that of apostles and bishops. So women used creativity in embracing their domestic calling and the authority it brought along.

Katharine Schütz Zell (1498–1562), a widely published lay author who had no children of her own, identified herself with a calling of a "church mother." In this role she exercised pastoral authority by the side of her pastor-husband in Strasbourg, even daring to preach at funerals. Her scintillating writings in defense of marriage may have caused an uproar, yet her pastoral texts and a hymnbook demonstrate her desire to promote ecumenical unity and to empower Christians to sing the gospel with new voices. Like von Grumbach, she also corresponded with Luther.

Another associate of Luther was Duchess Elisabeth von Braunschweig (1485–1555), who used her authority as the "mother of the people in her land" to implement Lutheran faith through legislation. Like her own mother earlier, Elisabeth had suffered exile from her Catholic husband and children once she confessed her faith in public by receiving the sacrament in a Lutheran rite. Her advice to her son, whom she groomed as a Lutheran ruler, was that he should obey God, the emperor—and his mother.

Of all the Reformation mothers, the most famous is Luther's beloved Katharina von Bora (1499–1552). She won the heart and admiration of Luther, who had orchestrated the escape of Katharina and eleven other nuns from their convent. As his equal "partner in calamity," Katharina mothered their six children and managed the intricate finances and other affairs of their bustling household. Luther admitted that next to the Holy Spirit, he obeyed his wife—"lord," Katharina.

These and other mothers of faith took significant risks and endured criticism if not even persecution for their choices. Their involvement was crucial for the new faith to take root.

Mission Opportunity

"Buck-a-Chick"

The Board of Mission is currently involving all members of St. Peter in a special project during April. This is the month of Easter and the beginning of spring. It's a time to think of new life, a time of going from darkness into light.

We would like families to share an Easter blessing with those who are in need of financial assistance throughout the world. It's called "Buck-a-Chick"!! Ten little chicks can make a BIG difference! Within a few months of birth, chicks begin laying eggs. Eggs make nutritious meals for growing children, and the extra eggs generate income to grow a small business.

Please look for the chick and the donation basket at the back of the church. Children are encouraged to color a chick sheet and get involved by learning how to show thankfulness by helping others. Returned coloring pages will be put on display!!

Faith Formation

Vacation Bible School 2017

As we all anxiously wait for warm weather to grace us, several members of St. Peter have begun the planning process for this year's VBS festivities. The initial group that met last month, has decided to opt for a one day VBS day camp out at Camp Ingawanis, located west of town. The date we are looking at is Friday, July 28th. This will be a day long camp for our kindergarten through sixth grade friends and a morning camp for our 3 year-old/preschool friends.

Although we will be using some of their staff and activities, the planning is up to our congregation. We are still looking for someone that would like to take the lead charge in coordinating the planning of this event. So if event planning is your "thing" and you are interested in taking on this role, contact Eve Pautsch. We have always had a core group of volunteers willing to help out with the details and orchestration of the VBS event.

If you are interested in being part of the planning committee, please let me know and I will add you to our planning email list.

Thanks

Eve Pautsch, sundayschool@stpeterdenver.org
